

One draw back of Blogger or Blogspot is that there is a navigation bar at the top of the page which can take your children to any random blogpage with the “next” button.

To get rid of this is our next task but you will need to cut and paste a bit of code to do it (or type it exactly!). Here is the code. Highlight it and copy it with Ctrl+C.

```
#navbar-iframe {
  height: 0px;
  visibility: hidden;
  display: none;
}
```

This has to be pasted into your blog template using the edit HTML tab in the layout area. It needs to go just after the Blogger template style as shown in the diagramme below.

A word of warning though! This only applies to the current template. If you do some housekeeping and decide to change templates, the navigation will reappear. Unfortunately you also lose the Dashboard and Sign In tabs. Here is the cleaned up banner, minus the next blog tab.

